Onions and Roses Report

Executive Summary

NORWESCON 41

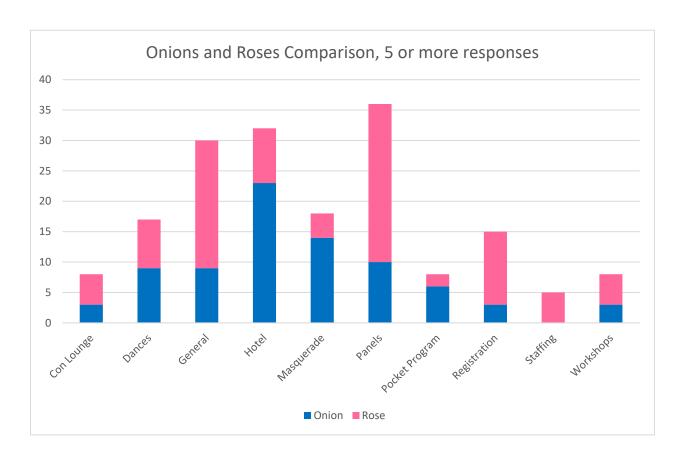

Norwescon

Authored by: NWC 41 Secretary Team

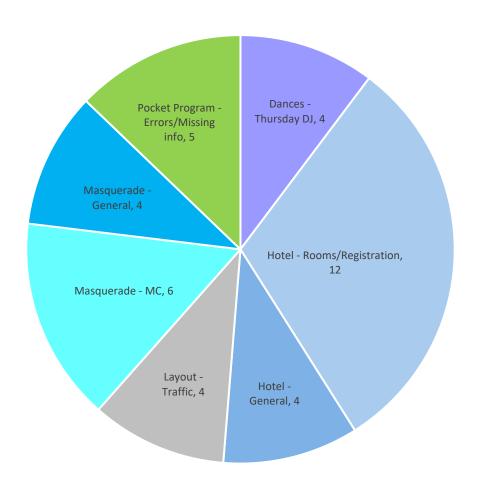

Overview

A total of 304 responses were submitted for NWC 41 by members. These break down into 117 Onions, 158 Roses, and 73 Suggestions. Some submissions count in multiple categories, e.g. as both an Onion and a Suggestion. The following table shows the categories which received the greatest number of responses, either in Onions or Roses.

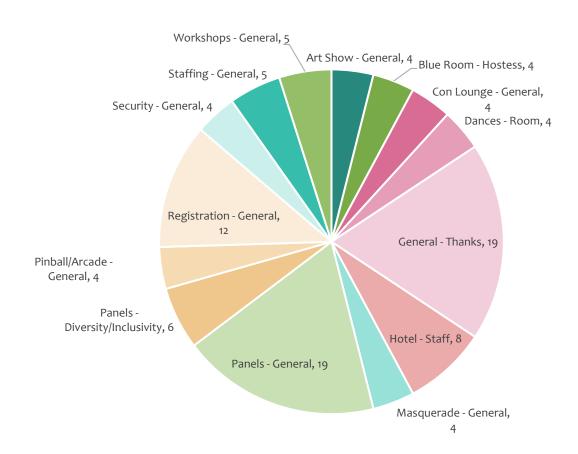

Onions

By far, the most significant negative responses were in relation to the hotel, specifically around room registration. The masquerade was also a source of a significant number of onions. The pocket program, traffic issues related to the layout of the convention, and the DJ for the Thursday night dance were also areas of concern to NWC 41 members.

Roses

By contrast, Roses tended to be much broader in topic. Panels were quite well received, with several respondents specifically calling out their diversity and inclusivity for praise. A significant number of Roses were generally thankful and laudatory of the convention as a whole. Registration also received a substantial amount of praise from respondents. Interestingly, while the hotel came under fire in the Onions, hotel staff received several Roses. Other areas of general praise included the dances, con lounge, blue room hostess, art show, workshops, staffing, security, pinball arcade, and masquerade participants.

Comments

All comments received by the NWC 41 Secretary team have been compiled into the following report.

Please note: Comments only represent the opinions and views of anonymous submitters; they do not reflect the views and opinions of Norwescon 41 in an official capacity in any way, shape, or form.

All submissions have been de-identified in order to protect both the privacy of the submitter and the privacy of any individual referenced in the comments. The exception to this rule is when a panelist is mentioned in association with their respective panel since their names have already been published in association with their panels.

			The Con itself was great. My issue was the whole party issue. There used to be like 5-8 open parties. Now they're almost all	Facebook closed or just gone away. Now it's like "who do you know" to get into any of the parties. This seems antithetical to the whole point of NWC. We're here to meet people and hang out. By making all the parties "closed door" it's like what's the point. To me, Hi! I've been a member and attended Norwescon the last two years. I'm a fan and also a writer. However, my day job is as a clergyperson, and I was wondering if Norwescon has considered having volunteer chaplains? I know a few other cons have done so (I believe Baycon did the last few years). I'm happy to volunteer as a non-denominational interfaith chaplain (I am LGBTQ affirming), just to be someone to talk to if someone needs it. Let me know if there is interestI may have a few other friends who would be willing to do so. I wouldn't be able to be there the whole time (Easter Sunday is not a day I can take off!) but I'm happy to volunteer to do this (and I'll still pay the registration fee because I like to go to panels and workshops) and wear a

			I'd like the con to be more sensitive and respectful in where they locate the "closed-door" meet-ups. We had some MeetUps scheduled in Hospitality when I was working there, and there were ISSUES. I am ABSOLUTELY NOT faulting the MeetUp moderators/organizers for this, but Hospitality is NOT an appropriate venue for a "closed" (participants only) event. If the MeetUp in question can't happen in a room which is open for non-MeetUp participants to enter or pass through during their scheduled time, it should get a proper meeting room, not part of the Hospitality suite. Hospitality is small enough already, and closing off most of the seating space for half an hour or an hour isn't a good idea. This is also not a complaint against "closed" MeetUps happening at the con. It is completely reasonable that some groups within fandom (such as the Fans of Color) should have scheduled time at the Con which is their own time, just for their group members. Please give MeetUps their own function

At two panels I went to, the panelists said they didn't even know why they were on the panel. As a specific example of a panel that disappointed me, I went to Fight Like An Amazon - where I expected to learn how the Amazons fought. But the panelists said they didn't know what they were supposed to do, so they had written down the sequence of steps for a fight scene from Wonder Woman. They were very talented, and they taught how fight scenes are done in movies and discussed how fights are blocked out, but that would have been much better for a panel called Learn How To Swordfight Like the Movies. At two panels I went to, the panelists said they didn't even know why they were on the panel. As a specific example of a panel that disappointed me, I went to Fight Like An Amazon - where I expected to learn how the Amazons fought. But the panelists said they didn't know what they were supposed to do, so they had written down the sequence of steps for a fight scene from Wonder Woman. They were very talented, and they taught how fight scenes are done in movies and discussed how fights are blocked out, but that would have been much better for a panel called Learn How To Swordfight Like the Movies. Another disappointment about panels is that many of them sounded like they had the potential to be very instructive or informative about a topic, but were instead all too easily sidetracked, ill-planned, or had too many panelists. I would love for them to be more like a lecture than a group discussion. I would love more workshops! This con offers the best writing workshop value ever. @norwescon Big #nwcrose for the whole Norweskids operation. Baby Groot had a phenomenal con weekend! One of the really neat things about my recent trip to Nor/WesCon is seeing just how many women there are now in what have been largely male-dominated creative fields. I think all but one of the panels I was on were majority-female, and that's encouraging. I was able to attend 3 writing workshops, and they were fantastic. I learned a lot and really enjoyed them. I was frustrated/disappointed by several panels I attended that didn't end up covering the topics in their description. One panel had two panelists who said they didn't agree with the purpose of the topic, so they talked about tangenital stuff. At two panels I went to, the panelists said they didn't even know why they were on the panel. 			While I have enjoyed most of the programming at Norwescon this year, I have a concern and your response will determine whether I can continue to support this con or recommend my friends support this con. As an author, I've been a panelist at 3 different conventions, 6 times total, for a panel called "How to Write Time Travel Fiction." When I submitted it to Norwescon website, you asked me to submit myself separately as a panelist. I didn't get any rejection or acceptance emails. I realize a lot of conrunners don't have time for rejection emails. So I checked the website periodically and noticed when the list of "pros" doing panels was put up, I wasn't on it. No biggie, rejection is a part of life. What I didn't realize until now is you are using MY panel idea, with MY title, and the exact wording I gave for the panel description. They have 2 different authors, and a moderator, not me. I didn't get an acceptance e-mail for the panel idea. I just happened to stumble across the panel on the website. I think the idea that you stole the exact wording of my panel description is what's irking me the most. I understand they may think it's a good idea to do a panel on time travel writing, but have different authors in mind. But when you use my exact description, it's unacceptable and a form of idea theft. In light of this, I ask the follwing things 1) the website having a clear disclaimer saying a panel may be piecked with the panelist is not. 2) the website having a checkbox or similar device for stating someone doesn't consent to having their panel used if they aren't selected as the panelist doing it. For the record, I wouldn't have consented, but I realize it's too late to change it this weekend. Also, I DON'T consent to my panel description or title to be used next (or any) year 3) if the situation arises, e-mail the pro to once again confirm it's ok. 4) Because you have ripped off my ideas and made me feel small, I ask that you make it up to me somehow. It could be a free or discounted membership to next year, or anything

			Someone apparently got a bug in an uncomfortable place about audience participation. Suddenly nobody is allowed to say anything in panels until some unspecified time period at the end that is set aside for "questions and comments". And a lot of times they were restricted to questions only. In many cases we were berated preemptively at the beginning of the panel for even thinking about wanting to make a comment or ask a question. Now I agree that if one person decides, uncalled upon, to monopolize the panel AND the moderator doesn't know how to shut them down, it can become an issue. But being browbeaten 1			into sitting quietly and just listening with no opportunity to say anything and just hoping that the mod won't forget all about it is, honestly, kind of boring. Especially if the actual panel participants aren't particularly animated or interesting. A good part of the

There's not much that you can do about that, but if you think of something Oh, and it would be helpful if either somewhere on the website it was mentioned that you can validate your hotel parking to reduce it to $8, or a note was taped to the validation machine saying the same thing. I stopped several people from massively overpaying because they had no idea. I had someone get frustrated at me because they didn't know how	Sunday O&R Panel ice Chair	Hotels	Onion Onion Rose Rose Onion Onion Rose Rose Onion Onion Onion Onion Onion Onion Onion Onion Onion	Really bad this year- what happened? Anytime I have reserved a room, especially an ADA room, what we hear is that the Convention hasn't mentioned anything about having ADA rooms available in the Convention block. This happens at many conventions. A hotel employee tried to place a member in the cloak room at check-in. The hotel was really quick about straightening out room reservation issues. Thanks to the hotel and Hotels NWC staff for the handling of the Costco delivery. I had an interesting experience trying to make a reservation. There were some communication issues with reservations, and I wasn't able to feel I was understood by reservation staff. We were told by the wait stuff that there was up to a 2 hour delay in the restaurant because management had not put their whole crew out. It was a mess (about 8:30, Saturday night). The staff was under a lot of pressure and strain, but they had great customer service, and they were trying their absolute best. Our housekeeping staff worker was excellent; she was friendly, talkative, quick with towels, and was willing to come back later. I would like to say that every bit of staff has been amazing except for management. The party room hallway did smell very highly of pot. Exorbitantly and obscenely expensive. Rooms and restaurant prices. I feel this hotel is starting to not meet the needs of our convention. I hope to get teen panels, and right now, we don't have the space. Allergy friendly food has gotten way better. Hotel staff at the bar- Norwescon t-shirts and a nice attitude! (heart symbol) Parking! Parking was horrendous and stressful. There's not much that you can do about that, but if you think of something Oh, and it would be helpful if either somewhere on the website it was mentioned that you can validate your hotel parking to reduce it to S8, or a note was taped to the validation machine saying the same thing. Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	I was double charged even after paying cash at checkout told it was company policy.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	My room was booked for different people each night. I was asked constantly why I was not checking out during the Con.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	I was told that ADA rooms were no at Con rate, so I was required to get a regular room.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	I was told at checkin that dd t ay $1,000 deposit for a regular room. Told it was policy.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	Hotel needs to upgrade/fix lighting controls in Grand Ballrooms 1, 2, & 3 - It's getting worse!	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	Several people told me they did not get the room they wanted- desired tower get 5B or desired wing get taken.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	Would have appreciated hotel having room (con space) ready. They were 4 hours late.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Rose	Quick responses from the hotel liaison- thanks!	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	Checkin was AWFUL. Checking out also took too long!	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	Parking was a nightmare. Maybe hire a couple kids to keep track of open spaces?	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Rose	Hotel housekeeping staff were fantastic.	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	Hotels	Onion	I feel like the hotel isn't interested in keeping our business. It seems they get more and more lax on responses, and some of our contacts at the hotel are incompetent or unhelpful. Perhaps customer service isn't a value anymore for some of the events leadership at the hotel, and perhaps it's time we found a different hotel. This crappy hotel is falling apart, and there is always some sort of snafu with having rooms ready. I don't care that lots of people are coming in. You KNOW lots of people are coming it, so make it happen! We don't pay you for fun. The hotel needs to shape up, or we should ship out.	Email
Vice Chair	General	Rose	Timeline was clear and understandable! Thanks!	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	General	Rose	Nothing but AWESOME!	Post-Con Meeting
Vice Chair	General	Rose	Need breakout time to play Pokemon.	Post-Con Meeting
